WHY HE DOESN'T FLEE.

Because Czar Would Lose Titular Headship of Orthodox Church, One Reason.

Manchester, Eng., April 6.—The London correspondent of the Despatch says: "I have been shown extracts from a letter to an official friend here from one of the principal secretaries of the Russian foreign ministry, which says that the czar would have unquestionably fled from Europe at any time since 'Red Sunday' but for the fact that the grand dukes have repeatedly brought to his notice in the old royal coronation oath the effect that if his majesty deserted his country in the hour of trouble he would forfeit the titular headship of the orthodox church. Without this he can never be czar again. This accounts for the czar's vacillation on the subject of peace."

Winooski, April 6.—George E. Whitney was quite badly injured in a collision of two teams on the lower road to Burlington at 9:30 o'clock last evening. A carriage which contained Mr. Whitney and Thomas H. Brown of Burlington, coming from Burlington, and a Papin livery team, containing William Scott and F. Barney, going toward Burlington, came together in a dark place. When Mr. Whitney was picked up it was found that he was in a semi-conscious condition and word was immediately sent to Dr. J. W. Sheehan. In the meantime Mr. Whitney was taken into the house of a teamster, Louis Lavalley, and placed on a bed. When Dr. Sheehan arrived it was found that Mr. Whitney had sustained a cut on his nose and another on his upper lip. He also complained of pains in his side and in his right arm. Dr. Sheehan dressed his cuts, and then sent a telephone message to Dr. J. B. Wheeler of Burlington to proceed to Mr. Whitney's house. Mr. Whitney was taken home where the doctors both attended him. None of the other occupants of the carriage was injured, with the exception of Mr. Barney, who received a slight cut on his forehead.

MUST LEAVE HOME.

William Brislin of Rutland Must Also Pay $10 a Month.

Rutland, April 6.—After a session of less than a month the spring term of the Rutland county court was adjourned yesterday afternoon. The feature of yesterday's session was the contempt proceedings brought by Mrs. Nellie Brislin against her husband, William Brislin, who was suing her for a divorce. After hearing several witnesses Judge Powers rendered a decision dismissing the petition for contempt. An agreement between the parties was made, whereby Mr. Brislin is to leave home and pay Mrs. Brislin $10 a month instead of $25 as heretofore. The Brislin case has been aired in the courts for almost 20 years on one pretext or another. The present contempt proceedings arose from the action of Mr. Brislin in seeking for a divorce from his wife. Within a year Mrs. Brislin sued for separate maintenance from her husband, and the court awarded her $25 a month from her husband.

A DOG CASE.

Randolph Man Could Not Get License on Canine Transferred.

Randolph, April 6.—The case of the selectmen vs. Cyrus F. Stevens was heard in the town clerk's office Tuesday afternoon before Judge William H. Nichols. The case was concerning Mr. Stevens' dog, for which the selectmen refused to allow a license for the coming year. However, the owner had his dog licensed in the town of Hartford, but the selectmen would not allow the license to be transferred. The reason the selectmen refused in the first place to have the dog licensed was because of a petition received from several citizens who claimed the dog was vicious and a nuisance. The court decided that from the testimony of the witnesses the license should not be transferred. The dog is licensed and the owner has a right to keep the same in any part of the state.

PRISONER IS CHANGED

Bronson Charged With Murder, Has Gained 50 Pounds

AND LOOKS MUCH BETTER

Essex County Court Has Its First Murder Trial in 40 Years and Court Room Is Crowded Every Day.

Guildhall, April 10.—The trial of Reuben Bronson who is charged with killing Charles Lyon, the keeper of a roadhouse at South Bloomfield, on April 1, 1904, at 11 o'clock at night is now on in Essex county court, and for the first time in forty years people hereabouts have a chance to hear a murder trial. They have taken advantage of it thus far, as can be judged by the crowded court room.

After Bronson had pleaded guilty to the charge of murder in the second degree the work of empanelling a jury was started. This was completed at five o'clock last evening. The selection of a jury proved a laborious task, and not until thirty-five men had been called was a panel satisfactory to the court, defence and state secured. Seven of the jurors came from Lunenburg, two from Guildhall and one each from East Haven, Maidstone and Concord, places somewhat distant from Bloomfield, the scene of the tragedy in which Charles Lyon lost his life.

When Deputy Sheriff Stevens brought the prisoner into court Bronson was a changed man from his appearance at the hearing a year ago. He had gained fully fifty pounds in weight. His complexion has cleared and he looks a better man. He sat by his counsel during the day's session. Attorney Howe moved for a postponement owing to the illness of Mrs. Alice Gilbert of Bloomfield, Vt., an important witness. After a discussion until 2 o'clock and authorized Dr. Frank Evans to visit the witness and make a report of her condition to the court. Promptly at 2 o'clock Dr. Evans reported that Mrs. Gilbert could attend the session without serious alarm and the case was placed on trial.

Over sixty witnesses have been summoned and the case will probably consume a week or ten days. On the night of April 1, 1904, Lyon was in the road in front of an unoccupied house between his house and that of the Bronsons, when the latter appeared on their steps. Lyon, accompanied by some companions, had some words with the Bronsons, after which the latter, it is alleged, without warning, drew a revolver and fired four shots.

Lyon fell, his brain pierced by a bullet. In the confusion following the shooting the Bronsons managed to escape, but were captured on the following day.

Judge Seneca Haselton is the presiding justice, assisted by O. B. Cutting. The state is represented by Attorney General Pitts, Elisha May and former State's Attorney H. W. Lund. The defendant's counsel is Harland Howe of St. Johnsbury.

VINCITIA CLUB IN NEW HOME.

New Settled in Blanchard Building, Occupying Half of Third Floor.

The membership of Vincitia club turned out in force last night to inspect the new club rooms in the Blanchard building, as it was the first opportunity to see the rooms in their finished condition. The quarters are a great improvement over any the club has ever had and rank with club accommodations in any place in the state. They are commodious, well-arranged and finely furnished.

The suite occupies one-half of the third floor of the large building and contains five principal rooms, as follows: Reception room at the front, with the reading room next back of it, card room, billiard and pool room, while just off the reception room is the writing room. The finish of the suite is birch, and the floors are hard wood. The furniture is dark, mission style, and adds much to the attractiveness of the club, there being chairs, rockers, divans, tables, etc., in that kind of finish. Portieres of a rich green shade separate the reception room from the reading room and from the writing room, and at the windows are French elune curtains. The reception room has four front windows. Art squares cover the floor of this and the floor of the reading room.

In the reading room is an immense fireplace, of brick tiling, and on each side a cushioned settee. Opening off this room is a private telephone booth. The card room, large enough for six tables, is finished plainly. The large billiard room contains four tables, two each for billiards and pool. The tables and, in fact, the whole equipment, are new, being from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. Opening from this is the janitor's room, also two lavatories, with two set tubs and arrangement for shower bath. The coat room at the entrance is also supplied with a wash room. The whole suite is wired for electric lights and has handsome chandeliers, combination fixtures for gas, too, if necessary. The walls are tinted.

Taken altogether, the club is quite well satisfied with the quarters, which have been leased from the Blanchard block syndicate for a period of ten years. The club has a membership of 160. I. O. Wales, who has been janitor for several years, has been retained for the same position in the new place.
